Baltimore, Maryland

Interior Architectural Services for a national accounting firm

DCS has worked with CohnReznick LLP on offices across the country, from L.A. to Boston. Each location is designed with a unique image and set of needs, while addressing corporate standards.

The recently renovated 60,000 SF Baltimore office incorporated a new unique office standard for teaming. DCS developed a "Beehive" concept that creates a flexible work space with four hexagonal shaped private offices centered around a small conference room. Small gaps are inset between the offices on three sides, providing additional space for collaboration, filing, production, phone booths, etc. These flexible hive spaces are located adjacent to open workstations, and are tailored to each team's specific needs.

Additional design features include a glass enclosed conference center off the lobby, accented by a geometric sculptural dry wall feature which serves as a branding wall.

A new employee cafe and game room allows staff the flexibility of multiple work environments and areas for collaboration, socializing and relaxation. The multi-purpose lunch room will open to a future landscaped patio designed with outdoor seating and network access.
